A historical civic square built to inspire you

Le Pole Square respects the past and embraces the future.

A landscaped civic square with the excavated remains of St. Michael Le Pole Church, is the focal point of the scheme. Once St. Michael of the Pool, due to the round tower overlooking the 'Black Pool' or Dubh Linn in Irish, from which Dublin takes its name. The great storm of 1775 did irreparable damage to the tower eventually leading to the church being pulled down.

Inspired by its history, this LEED Gold building keeps the name Le Pole alive encouraging visitors to reflect on this medieval legacy. Multifunctional in nature, this public space offers an immersive cultural experience. The garden is landscaped with tiles replicating designs taken from the church interior. This space gives visitors a social meeting place with a spa, café and gallery.
